& FOSSIL*

Portland stone (mined in the Island of Portland, Dorset, England, in the English Channel) is a type of limestone that over the past 150 million years or so, with the growth and compaction of tiny deposits, it has slowly formed a rich heritage and clean and pristine beauty, like a layer of light gauze, a unique atmosphere to inject peace and comfort into the space.

From the three levels of natural color, texture and texture, realistically restore the limestone stack to form a soft texture and color, reproduce the uncanny workmanship of nature, explore the natural beauty carved by time, blend the original plain beauty and elegance.

A stack of three pieces of textured paper. The bottom piece is a solid red color. The middle piece is a bright yellow color with a slightly crumpled texture. The top piece is a darker red color, also with a textured surface. The stack is positioned on the left side of the frame. The background is a light gray, textured surface with subtle horizontal lines. A soft shadow is cast to the right of the stack.
